

Corporate and Division Headquarters - Listed by Railroad and location

© ExploreRailHistory -- your personal RailEncyclopedia www.ExploreRailHistory.com

We grouped these three categories together, since a shop facility or roundhouse would be found at most medium to large yards, Roundhouse and shop locations often left a significant "community footprint" either in terms of the persons who worked in these facilities, the preserved buildings that were formerly occupied by the railroad, or simply the historic records of the railroad's presence. Major Yards and Shops are highlighted in Yellow. This database is far from complete. Many yard locations are shown without a corresponding roundhouse, and vice versa; contact us at kybillhusb@gmail.com for updates

We grouped these three categories together, since a shop facility or roundhouse would be found at most medium to large yards, Roundhouse and shop locations often left a significant "community footprint" either in terms of the persons who worked in these facilities, the preserved buildings that were formerly occupied by the railroad, or simply the historic records of the railroad's presence. Major Yards and Shops are highlighted in Yellow. This database is far from complete. Many yard locations are shown without a corresponding roundhouse, and vice versa; contact us at kybillhusb@gmail.com for updates

We grouped these three categories together, since a shop facility or roundhouse would be found at most medium to large yards, Roundhouse and shop locations often left a significant "community footprint" either in terms of the persons who worked in these facilities, the preserved buildings that were formerly occupied by the railroad, or simply the historic records of the railroad's presence. Major Yards and Shops are highlighted in Yellow. This database is far from complete. Many yard locations are shown without a corresponding roundhouse, and vice versa; contact us at kybillhusb@gmail.com for updates

We grouped these three categories together, since a shop facility or roundhouse would be found at most medium to large yards, Roundhouse and shop locations often left a significant "community footprint" either in terms of the persons who worked in these facilities, the preserved buildings that were formerly occupied by the railroad, or simply the historic records of the railroad's presence. Major Yards and Shops are highlighted in Yellow. This database is far from complete. Many yard locations are shown without a corresponding roundhouse, and vice versa; contact us at kybillhusb@gmail.com for updates
