In 1917, 1,500 U.S. railroads operated around 254,000 miles and employed 1.8 million people including Railroad Shop Employment of 339,000 men. [3, 5] Railroad employment has declined dramatically since the end of World War II. By 1997, employment had declined to about 235,000 workers. [1] Currently, it is estimated that slightly over 170,000 people work for the railroads. [4] For additional information, see Glossary entry: "Employment Trends: U.S. Railroad Industry"
